NC NAACP
STATE CONFERENCE

“Welcome to the 34th Annual Humanitarian of the Year Award Banquet”

Dear NAACP Sisters, Brothers and Friends,

Greetings and welcome from the North Carolina State Conference. Once again, the eyes of the nation are on us. We come together at our Winter Meeting and Humanitarian Award to reflect, learn, and grow from decades of work against the sin and system of racism in North Carolina. Many of us have made good social justice fighting friends in the last few years -- some call them our ‘rotunda friends.

Several thousands of us sang and prayed truth to power around the rotunda over the years and we must enter 2018 with that same spirit. We know, the struggle continues. The forces of hate and fear we witnessed in North Carolina have been loosed and legitimatized by the Republican Party on the national stage.

Donald Trump is leading a fractured Party of Lincoln, barely held together by deceit and hypocrisy, washes its dirty laundry in public. The Republican Party’s intolerant strain has broken loose and is slouching around the main ring of the Republican Circus, like a beast from the depths of hell, and no one in the Party seems able to stop it.

The gigantic elephants hover just outside the tent: poverty, joblessness, racism, sexism and homophobia. No one dares to touch the fact that age-old bastions of racism in the criminal justice system are beginning to fall apart in front of everyone’s eyes. North Carolina is leading the charge in advocating and fighting for the wrongfully convicted.

The Winter Session will be full of lessons we have learned from the previous years of intense struggle. Fighting the forces of fear in the Streets, in the Legislature, in the Courts, and at the Ballot Box. We will take our ‘Battle to the Ballot Boxes’ this year!

For these strong wonderful years of deepening our coalition, across the state, we want to thank every member of the NAACP. We know that the angels of justice and love have been escorting us on our millions of miles of travel over the highways of the old North State. We have been so blessed. We hope to get a chance to see each of you up close while you are here.

With love for you and love for justice,

After graduating, he worked for his family’s business--the W.A. McLean & Son Monument Company. He later organized the Wholesale Baking Company in Winston-Salem and became a partner and manager. During WWII, McLean worked as a foreman at the Metro Decorating Company, which was involved in constructing military installations and housing projects. In 1942 he worked for the IRS as a deputy collector, and later was appointed Administrator for War Finance for the state of North Carolina. After the war McLean returned to Winston-Salem and organized a property management company. In 1950 he began a long-time association with the NAACP by accepting a position as director of Special Assignments for the voter registration program. In 1951 McLean became field director of the North Carolina Conference of Branches, consisting of 35 local branches. He served in this capacity until his retirement in 1978, by which time there were over one hundred local branches. McLean’s work with the State Conference of Branches involved building up local NAACP branches, work for desegregation, and supporting voter education and voter registration campaigns aimed at increasing representation of African Americans in North Carolina.

JOHN MENDEZ, D. MIN, D. D.

BEAUTIFUL ARE HIS FEET

“How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed” And how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent? As it is written, how beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things.”

Prophet, preacher, pastor, professor, philosopher, psychotherapist and activist are just a few adjectives that describe the life, work, and ministry of John Mendez. Pastor Mendez has been the senior Minister of the Emmanuel Baptist Church since 1983, after leaving the Pleasant Grove Baptist Church where he served for six years.

Pastor Mendez believes in a holistic approach to ministry where people come to recognize the interrelatedness of the social and the spiritual, the sacred and the secular. The whole person must be ministered to. Throughout his 30 plus years as a Pastor, he has been a voice for the voiceless while at the same time equipping and empowering others to speak truth to power. At Emmanuel, Pastor Mendez has organized various ministries to raise self-awareness, consciousness, and instill pride in the members, especially youth through the Kemet Academy, and the Kemet Summer Youth Camp, which provides summer employment for teenagers and young adults. Pastor Mendez’s passion for bible study promotes a scholarly approach to biblical studies, and through church sponsored Christian Education seminars and institutes, the church interacts with the academy and participates in regular cultural, biblical, and theological programs. In 2000, the church under Pastor Mendez’s leadership completed a new multimillion dollar sanctuary and classroom edifice. Pastor Mendez has served on many international and national boards and committees: the Racial Justice Working Group and the General Board of the National Council of Churches, Partners in Ecumenism, and the Urban-Rural Commission of the World Council of Churches, the Black Theology Project Board, the Human Rights Commission of the Baptist World Alliance, and as an honorary member of the All Africa Conference of Churches in Nairobi, Kenya. He was the first African American pastor to address the General Board in 1987 in Madagascar. Pastor Mendez initiated a Progressive National Baptist movement in Wolver Hampton and London, England after preaching a week revival. He was a delegate to the United Nations Conference on Racism in Quito, Ecuador where he helped to write the U. S. document that was presented in Durban, South Africa. Also, through his efforts, a Progressive National Baptist Church was established in Quito. He has served as chairperson of the Home Mission Board of the Progressive National Baptist Convention, and Second and First Vice President of the General Baptist State Convention of North Carolina. He is presently the Chairperson of the Social Justice Committee. He served on the North Carolina Psychology Board after being appointed by Governor Jim Hunt. He is on the Forsyth Tech Advisory Committee for the school of nursing. Pastor is also a past president of the Minister’s Conference of Winston Salem.

Noted for his contributions to Civil and Human Rights, Pastor Mendez served as a consultant on many international fact finding commissions: He investigated the Vegas Island Pollution crisis in Puerto Rico, U. S. War Crimes in Nicaragua and El Salvador, war crimes in Angola; he also was part of an investigation team to study sacred land rights and sites, as well as sacred rites as it affected indigenous people such as the Hawaiians, Native Americans, particularly the Black Hills land rights issues of the Lakota Indians in South Dakota, the Mount Graham sacred land rights and sites issues of the Apache Nation in San Carlos, Arizona,. He was a part of a fact finding commission that investigated Environmental Racism and its effects on African American communities in Louisiana. Pastor Mendez joined an interfaith group of religious leaders who went to Iraq in search of peace and reconciliation before the second war. He also addressed a large anti-war peace audience at the Riverside Church in New York City just prior to going to Iraq.

Pastor Mendez is one of the founding members and chairperson of Citizens United for Justice that successfully led the city in obtaining a citizens-police review board in Winston Salem. He was a founding member and participant in SACSI, which brought together clergy, law enforcement, and the community in a united effort to reduce teen gun violence in Winston Salem. He presently serves on the Daryl Hunt Innocence Project Board and provides counseling for the Re-Entry Program for ex-offenders. Pastor Mendez also served as a consultant for Bridging the Gap Cultural Competence Program of the Urban League.

His lecture and preaching experiences have taken him to many college and university campuses: Harvard Law and Divinity Schools in Cambridge, Mass, Bates College in Maine, University of Alabama at Birmingham, Delaware State University, North Carolina University Law School in Chapel Hill, University of North Carolina at Greensboro, Duke University School of Public Policy in Durham, Appalachian State University, North Carolina State University for the Society of Afro-American Students, Campbell University, North Carolina Central University, Winston Salem State University, Wake Forest University, Shaw University, Elon College, and Livingston College.

He is also Associate Professor of Systematic Theology, Philosophical Theology, African American Philosophy at Shaw Divinity School.

In 1993, Pastor Mendez was the keynote preacher at the Thomas Dorsey National Convention of Gospel choirs and choruses. He was also the preacher in 1993 for Freedom Night of the Progressive National Baptist Convention. In 1986, he delivered a paper at the Second Martin Luther King Jr. Theological Conference in Havana, Cuba and later preached a revival at the First Baptist Church in Matanzas, Cuba. Pastor Mendez is a founding member of Reframing the Dialogue on Racism, which was born out of the Burn Churches crisis after he and 42 other ministers met with President Clinton and Attorney General Janet Reno to acquire government involvement and assistance in this crisis. RTDOR provides seminars on multiculturalism and diversity, which includes indigenous persons as presenters.

Pastor Mendez received a BA from Shaw University in Raleigh, North Carolina; M. Div. from Southeaster Baptist Theological Seminary, Wake Forest, North Carolina, Doctor of Ministry from United Theological Seminary in Dayton, Ohio, and a special training certificate in Pastoral Counseling and psychotherapy from the Post Graduate Center of Mental Health in New York City. He is also a graduate of The Institute of Contemporary Psychotherapy and Psychoanalysis in Washington D. C. Pastor Mendez was a participant in the first pilot project on the Black Church’s Economic Responsibility for a New Economic Agenda at Harvard University Divinity School.

Pastor Mendez’s accolades range from Who’s Who in American Colleges and Universities to the Winston Salem Chronicle’s Man of the Year in 1994. He received the President’s award of the Progressive National Baptist Convention, the Alpha Award of merit by Omicron Gamma Lunda Chapter of Alpha Phi Fraternity, the Achievement Award from the Winston Salem Urban League, the Honorary Keeper of the Constitution of the State of North Carolina by the Department of Secretary of State. In 1991, he was awarded an Honorary Doctorate by Shaw University Divinity School. In 2006, Pastor Mendez was inducted into the Honorary Board of Preachers at Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia.

Pastor Mendez is married to the former Sarah Lee Howard and together they have two adult children, Sekou and Jamila, and they are the proud grandparents of five grandchildren.
The Duke Center for Criminal Justice and Professional Responsibility is devoted to the promotion of criminal justice in North Carolina and elsewhere, and to teaching and training students, lawyers, prosecutors, judges, and the general public to identify, remedy, and prevent the wrongful conviction of innocent people. The Center pursues these goals through a series of coordinated academic, advocacy, and public activities, including published papers, extra-curricular programs, and public education. The Center and the NC NAACP have co-authored several amici briefs in support of the Racial Justice Act, and have partnered together on several other occasions in their common goals of educating the public and improving the criminal justice system.

The Center’s principal teaching components are the Duke Law School Wrongful Convictions Clinic and the student-run Duke Law Innocence Project®. In both, Clinic Attorneys Jim Coleman, Theresa Newman, and Jamie Lau teach students about the causes of wrongful convictions and then train them in how to investigate cases of possible wrongful conviction, and, when necessary, how to litigate them in court. Together, the attorneys and students spend hundreds of hours on individual cases, reading the case files, interviewing witnesses, working with experts, presenting the findings to State actors, drafting and filing legal documents, and litigating the cases in court. The Clinic was co-founded and is co-directed by Jim Coleman and Theresa Newman, and Jamie Lau serves as the Clinic supervising attorney.

Following is a list of the exonerations that the Clinic has secured, as well as some of the other cases the Clinic is actively pursuing.

Exonerations

Totaling more than 98 years of wrongful imprisonment

LaMonte Armstrong (Guilford County): Mr. Armstrong’s conviction was overturned in June 2012, after he served 17 years for the murder of his family friend and college professor. While preparing for the hearing on the claims raised by the Clinic, the State identified the actual perpetrator and joined the Clinic in seeking Mr. Armstrong’s release. Mr. Armstrong later received a pardon of innocence from Governor McCrory.

Howard Dudley (Lenoir County): Mr. Dudley’s conviction was overturned in March 2016, after he served 24 years on a charge of child sexual abuse. The only evidence implicating Mr. Dudley was the testimony of his 9-year-old daughter, who recanted shortly after trial and spent the next 24 years trying to right the wrong her false testimony caused. The Clinic learned and proved that Mr. Dudley’s daughter has an intellectual deficiency and suffers from certain psychological conditions that made her particularly susceptible to leading questions and interrogations. The Judge agreed, granting relief on all of the claims raised by the Clinic and proclaiming that the system had failed Mr. Dudley.
Shawn Massey (Mecklenburg County): Mr. Massey’s conviction was overturned in May 2010, after he served 12 years for the armed robbery of a young mother in a Charlotte apartment complex. Mr. Massey’s conviction was based on a cross-racial identification, with the perpetrator’s hairstyle – corn rows, with five or so braids hanging down in the back – as the single distinguishing feature. The Clinic proved that Mr. Massey had never had hair long enough for braids of any kind, and, in the end, the State agreed and moved to have Mr. Massey’s conviction overturned.

Noe Moreno (Mecklenburg County): Mr. Moreno’s conviction was overturned in August 2012, after he served six years of a 22-year sentence for 2d degree murder and related charges. The Clinic proved that the police misidentified Mr. Moreno as the driver of the car that crashed, killing a passenger. In the end, the State agreed that the wrong person had been charged and Mr. Moreno was wrongly convicted.

Michael Parker (Henderson County): Mr. Parker’s conviction was overturned in August 2014, after he served 22 years for multiple counts of child sexual abuse. Mr. Parker and a number of other adults in his area were accused of engaging in group, ritualistic abuse of Mr. Parker’s children. Mr. Parker was tried first and was convicted on nearly all counts, receiving sentences that would have kept him in prison for life. After Mr. Parker’s conviction, his aging and ill mother confessed to a severely reduced charge to avoid prison, and the other adults were never tried (and the charges were dropped). The allegations arose during the period of near-hysteria about ritualistic abuse in the United States and beyond. Working with an outside lawyer, the Clinic proved that the allegations were false and the product of now-discredited medical evidence and child interviewing techniques.

Scott Pierpoint (Madison County): Mr. Pierpoint’s conviction was overturned in July 2010, after he served 17 years on a charge of child sexual abuse. The Clinic proved that the child who made the allegation recanted shortly afterward, admitting that he lied, and had since continued to try to undo the resulting tragic result. The Clinic also proved that Mr. Pierpoint’s defense lawyer had multiple, serious conflicts of interest that resulted in ineffective representation. In the end, the State agreed with the Clinic’s claims and supported Mr. Pierpoint’s release.

Selected Active Cases of Innocence

Other than those listed here, the Clinic has approximately 10 additional active cases, ranging from being under review to being actively litigated in court.

Charles Ray Finch (Wilson County): A jury convicted Mr. Finch of murder in 1976, resulting in a mandatory death sentence. The U.S. Supreme Court subsequently found the mandatory sentence unconstitutional, and Mr. Finch’s sentence was reduced to life in prison. The only remaining evidence against Mr. Finch is an unreliable cross-racial identification. Mr. Finch is African American and the eyewitness was white. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the 4th Circuit in Richmond is deciding whether to review the case. Currently 41 years in prison.

Ronnie Wallace Long (Cabarrus County): Mr. Long was convicted of first degree rape and burglary in 1976, after which he was sentenced to life in prison. The only evidence against Mr. Long was a cross-racial identification made by the victim nearly two weeks after the assault. New evidence was discovered in Mr. Long’s case showing that, early on, law enforcement could not connect Mr. Long to the crime through the physical evidence they collected at the scene. Mr. Long did not have this information at trial. Currently 41 years in prison.

Derrick McRae (Richmond County): Mr. McRae was convicted of murder in 1998 when he was still a teenager. His conviction rested only on the testimony of two men who received favorable treatment in their own cases after testifying. His trial counsel did not receive most of the State’s investigative records, and four months of these records are now missing. Last September, the Clinic represented Mr. McRae at a resentencing hearing and his sentence was modified to life with the possibility of parole from life without the possibility. The Clinic’s efforts to fully exonerate Mr. McRae continue. Currently 20 years in prison.

Montoyae Dontae Sharpe (Pitt County): Mr. Sharpe was convicted of murder in July 1995. The State’s key witness against Mr. Sharpe was a troubled teenager who recanted her testimony shortly after trial. The NC NAACP has been actively involved in separately advocating for Mr. Sharpe’s release for the past two years. Currently 22 years in prison.

Clients Who Obtained Release but Clinic Still Fighting

Lamont McKoy (Cumberland County): Mr. McKoy was convicted of murder in 1991. After his conviction, evidence obtained by a federal joint crimes task force established Mr. McKoy’s innocence. The federal prosecutors in a separate case argued that a different person, not Mr. McKoy, committed the murder in a different part of town. Mr. McKoy was released on parole in December 2017, but the Clinic’s efforts to fully exonerate Mr. McKoy continue, and his case is currently pending in federal court. 26 years in prison.

Kalvin Michael Smith (Forshay County): Mr. Smith was convicted in 1997 of the serious assault of a store clerk in Winston-Salem. Mr. Smith is African-American, but the police focused on a white suspect for the first six months of their investigation, switching to Mr. Smith only after the suspect relocated to Charlotte, NC. Mr. Smith served nearly 19 years in prison before being released in 2016 based on a sentence modification, not innocence. The Clinic’s efforts to fully exonerate Mr. Smith continue, and the NC NAACP is separately advocating for justice for Mr. Smith. 19 years in prison.

Damen Vega (Guilford County): Mr. Vega was paroled in December 2015, after he served 26 years for the murder of a neighbor and related charges. The Clinic believes Mr. Vega is innocent, but its effort to prove that have been hindered by the loss of the police file in the case and the general passage of time. In addition to its court efforts, the Clinic met with the Parole Commission on Mr. Vega’s behalf, and he was later granted a Mutual Agreement Parole Plan. Mr. Vega successfully completed all of the steps and was granted parole. 26 years in prison.

Lift Ev’ry Voice and Sing

Lift ev’ry voice and sing,
‘Til earth and heaven ring,
Ring with the harmonies of Liberty;
Let our rejoicing rise
High as the list’ning skies,
Let it resound loud as the rolling sea.

Sing a song full of the faith that the dark past has taught us,
Sing a song full of the hope that the present has brought us;
Facing the rising sun of our new day begun,
Let us march on ’til victory is won.

Stony the road we trod,
Bitter the chastening rod,
Felt in the days when hope unborn had died;
Yet with a steady beat,
Have not our weary feet

Come to the place for which our fathers sighed?
We have come over a way that with tears has been watered,
We have come, treading our path through the blood of the slaughtered,
Out from the gloomy past,
‘Til now we stand at last

Where the white gleam of our bright star is cast.
God of our weary years,
God of our silent tears,
Thou who has brought us thus far on the way;
Thou who has by Thy might Led us into the light,
Keep us forever in the path, we pray.

Lest our feet stray from the places, our God, where we met Thee,
Lest, our hearts drunk with the wine of the world, we forget Thee;

Shadowed beneath Thy hand,
May we forever stand,
True to our God,
True to our native land.
